

Instructions for A&S Promotion and Tenure
Guidelines for Reading the Model Case

Below is a model case created as an aid to your department in putting together your promotion and/or tenure materials. Refer to this model as a reference while you are completing the templates for Form A, Form B, and the table of contents. Failure to comply with the templates correctly may result in delays for the case.

1. Note that this model case has a Form B coversheet representing only one of three options, that of a candidate for tenure with promotion. For additional coversheets and case options, please refer to the Form B template.
2. Text has been added to this model to give you an idea of proper formatting. The green font (SAMPLE TEXT) is an indication of where your text needs to be placed in the templates.
3. Note that the text in blue type provides instructions; you need not remove it when completing the templates.
4. Your document's format should match that of the model, including the sequence of materials, section headings, and page breaks.
5. The final document you submit must be sequentially numbered with the table of contents as page 1.
6. If you or your administrators have any questions or trouble in creating, formatting, or paginating your case documents, please contact Cassidy Perreault at clperrea@syr.edu or 443-2875.

Single Items Housed In Dean's Office

(one hard copy set and one electronic set [do not scan bound publications or dissertation])

This material must be accompanied by a complete index of materials submitted, including all publications and other materials listed individually. All items must be listed. Where appropriate, all materials should be in reverse chronological order (most recent to least recent). Like items should be grouped (all syllabi, all class lists, all evaluations).

Publications (only those since last promotion for full professor candidates)

Class Lists – last 3 academic years

Departmentally solicited student surveys / evaluations: for tenure cases - all courses; for promotion-only cases - the last five (5) years

Syllabi – last 3 academic years

Dissertation (for any case that involves tenure)

Additional student or peer evaluations provided by the candidate, if applicable.

II. SCHOLARLY/CREATIVE WORK

Please follow the guidelines presented in the document “P&T Publications Nomenclature” available at <http://casinternal.syr.edu/>.

1. Publications

List publications in reverse chronological order (most recent items listed first). Candidates are asked to identify their most significant works since their appointment or last promotion, works to which the Committee should pay special attention.

In addition to complete bibliographic information (publisher, inclusive pagination, etc.), provide an annotation for each entry in the form of a brief commentary on such matters as: linkages among items, the nature of the journal chosen, whether its submissions are refereed, why an item that might appear of minor importance to the outsider is really of some importance, editorial constraints on length, sponsorship by outside funding, significance of multiple authorship, etc. If you are applying for Tenure, please identify the relationship, if any, between individual publications and your dissertation.

Although Form A does not request it, the Committee strongly encourages you to preface the annotated bibliography with a brief narrative description or overview of your research and/or creative interests as reflected in your scholarly/creative work (approximately 250 words).

For all publications, indicate whether the work was done elsewhere or at Syracuse, and organize it as before or after your last promotion or appointment.

A. Publications

This refers to books, chapters, articles, reviews, monographs, editorials, works of fiction or poetry, and software which has already appeared and is available in final form through publicly accessible sources.

B. In Press

This refers to the works of the aforementioned kinds which are completed and in production, but not yet published.

F. Under Contract

When a book is listed as under contract, it is important to indicate explicitly the state of development of the manuscript. It is well known to the Committee that books can be under contract without having been written, and completed manuscripts under contract may not be accepted for publication.

III. EXTERNAL EVALUATION

1) Letters from outside reviewers

Insert no fewer than 6 letters from external reviewers: More than half of the letters provided must be from scholars who were selected by the department without input or consultation from the candidate.¹ The Department's list and the candidate's list may have names in common, so long as each list is developed independently. When the Department's list of external referees and the candidate's list of external referees have the same names and the lists are developed independently, the referees common to both lists shall count as coming from the Department's list of referees. Please be sure your letter requests all of the information indicated as required in section II, C. 4 e (page 21) of the Policies and Procedures Regarding Tenure and Promotion (approved 2015).
